

Abstract

A system upgrades a mobile data acquisition device. The system includes a software upgrade for use with the mobile data acquisition device. The software upgrade is 5 located on a software management computer. The software management computer transfers the software upgrade from the software management computer to a local communications computer. The local communications computer transfers the software upgrade to the mobile data acquisition device.
10 The local communications computer stores the software upgrade for transfer to other mobile data acquisition devices.